THE CITIZEN.

TUCSON, PIMA COUNTY, ARIZONA.

Saturday, - July 12, 1873.

THE ALDINE for July is a capital number, both as regards its art and its literature.
It opens with a full-page illustration, printed in tints, and entitled "Catch Him!" It represents two children, the elder of whom, a girl, is holding her little brother up to a rosebush, on which a butterfly is about to alight. This is one of Mr. John S. Davis's studies of child life, and a very excellent one, too. "Moonlight on the Shenandoah" is the title of the first of a series of five illustrations drawn by Mr. J.
D. Woodward, whose themes are the scenery of the Old Dominion, which is chiefly selected in this instance from the region around Harper's Ferry and the Shenandoah. They are picturesque and beautiful.
Mrs. Eliza Greentree transports us back to Old New York, in her spirited sketch of "Hell Gate Ferry," which is one of the most characteristic local drawings ever contributed to the Aldine. "A Dainty Bit," after Otto Meyer, is delicious enough to provoke an epicure and a lover. Other figure-pieces are the "Morning Bath," by H. Werner, and "You Naughty Children!" by A. Gabl. There is a noble portrait of "The Countess Potoski;" a fine architectural view of "The Frauenkirche, Nuremberg;" a woodland scene entitled "The Oshet," by C. Kroner; and a weird picture of a bittorn, as we suppose, standing alone in a desolate marsh upon which the moon is just rising. This, which is after Dahl, is a most poetic and impressive realization of "Solitude." The literature of the Aldine is always as excellent as, and generally more varied, than the literature of any other American magazine. There are in the present number four good stories.
The more solid articles are a readable editorial on "The Old Dominion," apropos to Mr. Woodward's illustrations; another on "The Frauenkirche, Nuremberg;" and "A Life's Romance," a brief memoir of The Countess Potoski. Music, Art, and Literature are intelligently and independently discussed. Altogether the number is remarkably good. Subscription price $5.00, including Chromes "Village Belle" and "Crossing the Moor." James Sutton & Co., Publishers, 58 Maiden Lane, N. Y.

School Statistics.

Governor Safford, Superintendent of Public Instruction in Arizona, favors us with a sight at some reports recently received by him, from which we gather the following:

Pima county contains four school districts—No. 1 being Tucson, No. 2 Sanford, No. 3 Florence and No. 4 San Pedro. In No. 1 there are 540 children between the ages of six and twenty-one years; 263 boys and 277 girls; 138 attend public and 93 private school, and 183 can read and write.
In No. 2 there are 98 between the ages named: 64 boys and 34 girls; 24 attend public and seven private school, and 23 can read and write. In No. 3 there are 64 children; 32 boys and 32 girls, and 28 can read and write. In No. 4 there are 49 children; 25 boys and 24 girls and nine can read and write.

The Superintendent for Yavapai county reports 106 children between the ages of six and twenty-one in the Prescott district; 40 boys and 66 girls; 27 have attended public school and 51
can read and write.

The superintendent for Maricopa county reports a total of 302 children of the school age; 157 boys and 145 girls; 60 attend public and one private school; and 98 can read and write.

ITEMS from the Prescott Miner of June 28:

Joseph Melvin came to town this week from the Verde, and bragged about the good crops in that section of our county.

Dr. Bailey and Gen. Small reached home on the 22d, and express themselves Jelightened with southern Arizona and their hospitable treatment by the people of that section.

Hargrave, who was pardoned by Gov.
Safford, started to leave the Territory, on the evening of Friday last, in White & Webster's stage.

Mr. Thomas Cordis, collector of internal revenue, has recently made good improvements on his place, east side of the plaza.
In this connection, we take pleasure in stating that Mr. Cordis is a good citizen, a capable and efficient officer.

This time last year, Indians were murdering and robbing all around Prescott.
But, it is several months since a depreda-tion of any kind has been committed in this vicinity. So much for Crook.

MARRIED—At Preston, Minnesota, by the Rev. Terwilliger, Mr. O. H. Case, of Prescott, Arizona, to Elma, daughter of O.
D. Hicks, of Lenora, Minnesota.

Mr. Burt Foster handed us the foregoing yesterday morning, with the remark that he was not certain the exact date of the foregoing, but he believed that it occurred on the 31st day of May last.

THE Prescott Miner of last Saturday has this item of good news:

Private letters from Wickenburg assure us that Bill Smith's workmen had just struck a large deposit of very rich ore, in the Vulture Mine—one which George H.
Wilson says, in his letter, is good for $1-000 to the ton, in free gold.

By a War Department order of June 16, assistant surgeon Henry Lippincott was ordered from the Department of the South to that of Arizona.

GROW TIMBER.

If Arizona ever becomes a rich and attractive State, her own citizens must do much in the way of econo-mizing the water of the streams and growing timber. The New England, Middle and Western States were, not many years back, mere wildernesses filled with wild beasts and savage Indians. They contain abundance of water and too much timber for the farmer's wants; but all a vast amount of labor had to be put upon every acre to make it productive and valuable. Many parts of those States have cost as much to put in their present condition as our market value at this time. The people west of the Rocky Mountains, especially in California are beginning to realize, and act accordingly, that they must expend labor and money upon their lands to make them of much worth.
Arizona people must also recognize what it takes to make a country.
Timber produces moisture, and it can also be grown for use at less labor than it cost the pioneers of the old States to rid their lands of the excessive quantity thereon. Californians are now experimenting and have already gained much valuable knowledge on timber growth. For the benefit of our readers, we give the following found in one of our California exchanges:

Mr. Patterson and J. B. Felton are making an interesting experiment at their ranch, Point San Pedro, in San Mateo county, in raising the Eucalyptus tree for timber. These trees are raised from the seed, growing the proper size for transplanting after some three or four months. The ground is then properly prepared, and the trees are planted eight feet apart—thus giving eight or nine hundred trees to the acre. For the first two or three years the ground is, at the intervals of a few months, cultivated with the plow or harrow. The trees are allowed to grow naturally, only clipping the foliage from the windward side, where the growth is more dense, in order to preserve the equilibrium of the tree. It is supposed that about eight years will be required for the growth of the crop to a time profitable for the first harvest, and the estimated value for railroad ties, fence posts and wood will not be less than five hundred dollars per acre. After the trees are cut, from the stumps will spring new shoots; only one will be allowed to grow, and thus a new crop of timber is raised. It is said this timber will grow thriftily upon barren lands, requiring but little care and attention. The farmer would find it to his advantage to grow this tree around the margin of his fields.
Cattle will not browse upon the leaves, as they are strong and bitter as quinine. The bark is said to possess valuable medicinal qualities. There is no other tree that grows so rapidly, or whose timber is more valuable.
